Mrs. Bowers' Idea of It.
Mrs. Bowers predicts that the Fall and Winter will witness a very strong and healthy stock market with new discoveries. That in 1888 some curious political events will take place which will astonish the people. That Jim Fair has more of an interest in the Comstock than anybody dreams of and that he will yet become reconciled to his family and die surrounded by his wife and children, while his two scape-grace sons will reform and become honored members of society.

Cleveland says he will not have time to visit the Pacific Coast. The time he spent fishing or dawdling around the rural fair-grounds this Summer would have more than sufficed for a visit to Nevada.

The sore Dyspepsia people feel, however light may be their meal, should never be suffered to repose. And breed a train of graver woes. When perfect health they may procure, through TARRANT'S SELTZER safe and sure.

ALL SORTS.

—Wizard Oil at Geo. Thaxter's.
—Senator Foley wants to succeed Woodburn.

—Secretary of State Dormer is back from the Lake.

—Judge Boardman, of Reno, was in the city yesterday.

—Boy's alpaca coats for 75cts. at Blumenthal & Cohn's.

—Mrs. Dr. Thoma, nee Miss Wilsey, is visiting friends in Carson.

—A young boy named Harris was arrested yesterday for setting fire to some dried grass.

—D. B. Canfield's lecture at the Court House last evening was quite an instructive discourse.

—For Sale.—A large roomy residence in the Western part of the city. Fine location. Apply at this office.

—The Hawthorne Club are now anxious to try conclusions with Carson for $100 a side. Fools and their money are soon parted.

—Yank will give a grand ball at the Cascade House on the 13th of August. Five steamers will run from all parts of the lake and a general good time is expected.

—The accident to the circus train was caused by a broken axle. They were axles in which new ends had been welded, and which gave out in the middle through crystallization.

—The rumor that Old Brin, the Big Grizzly of the Sierras has again been seen, is once more revived. Old Brin never existed, he was a pure myth invented by Grizzly Dan.

—It is said that after the accident to the circus cars at Huffaker's the big elephants increased the damage by picking up rocks and throwing them at the cars. He would gather up a two hundred pound boulder and throw it whizzing through the air as easy as if it had been a brick.

—The August Overland will contain the opening chapters of a novelette by R. B. Townshend, "The Acequia Madre of Santiago," a tale of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico. It is an old-fashioned love story in these novel and picturesque surroundings. The chief characters are two young Pueblo Indians struggling against adverse fate and stern parents.

—The Douglass mill at Dayton, was shut down on Monday on account of some difficulty with the dynamo machines suppling electricity for amalgamating. The tailings remaining in the reservoir on the desert are too low in grade to convert profitably into bullion by the old process. The stamps at the mill are still in operation, dropping on ore from Garfield and other adjacent mining districts.

—The J. L. Moore murder case is still engaging the attention of the District Court of Washoe. Expert testimony has been introduced which goes to show that the diseased daughter had taken strychnine, which, in a measure, corroborates the defendant's story. The case will probably go to the jury to day. The general opinion is the jury will either disagree or bring in a verdict of acquittal.

—Sometime ago Agent Gibson of Pyramid Lake and Walker River Reservations, recommended of the Interior that the horses on the reserves should be improved, and suggested the purchase of one Percheron Stallion for each agency. After some consideration he was authorized to make the purchase, which he did. He selected two large, handsome stallions, and as some of the Indians are possessed of quite a number of good-sized mares some fine-looking colts sired by the Percheron stallions are now to be seen on the Pyramid reserve. The result will be in a few years time the Indians will have good-sized animals to do their work instead of ponies that look more like Newfoundland dogs than horses.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

"HE BLEEDS INWARDLY."

Some Ludicrous Billiard Playing in San Francisco.

When Jim Orndorff was in the city a few days ago he gave a very characteristic account of the fun occasioned by two Jews who played billiards at the Baldwin. Although good friends, the moment they cross cues over a billiard table, they intensely hate each other.

The rivalry is so strong that each would almost as soon lose his right hand as a game of billiards, said Orndorff. "When one man leaves the balls so that the other has a dead shot, he refuses to look on and see the shot made, but deliberately turns his back to save his feelings, and when he hears the balls click, bleeds inwardly."

"When two balls are slowly crossing each other's path and the meeting is uncertain, the two men bend over the table and indulge in the most outlandish contortions. The man who wants the balls to touch is throwing his body forward at the balls and the other is screwing and twisting into all manner of shapes to 'pull' the balls apart. It's better'n a circus and the shapes those men twist themselves into beat any contortionist I ever saw. The minute they begin their game everybody who is on to the combination crowds about the table to see the fun."

"The shouts of laughter that go up warn the players that they are the subject of ridicule and they try to assume an air of dignity and indifference, but they can't do that more than a minute and they are going through the same contortions utterly oblivious of the fact that several hundred people are in convulsions over them."

The Spud Question.

The Nevada Stockmen gives the editor of this paper credit for an article on the Nevada spud, which appeared in the APPEAL some days ago. The credit properly belongs to Mr. James Townsend as the article comes from his instructive pen. While James is busy writing steamboats etc., his agricultural eye never fails to take in anything that may be of benefit to the State or anything which allies thrift to her prosperity and progress.

Mr. Townsend has made himself a high authority on the Nevada potatoe and Nevada's success at New Orleans and the World's Fair at Philadelphia, came from potatoes raised under Mr. Townsend's instructions. He has made a life-long study of the old stand by and brought the tuber up to a high standard of excellence.

Wouldn't Wash on Mugwumps.

There is a man in Esmeralda county who, about 20 years ago, vowed that he would not wash his face or cut his hair until a Democratic President was elected. He stuck to his vow, and a few days ago he came in from Mason Valley as dirty and unkempt as ever.

"Say, Bill, why in thunder don't you quit looking so filthy?"

"Wall, you see, I swore never to wash my phiz or cut my hair until a Democrat was President."

"Well, ain't Cleveland elected?"

"My boy, I can't wash on Mugwumps, and it must be straight business before I cut my hair."

A Needed Definition.

Dame—Don't you think it is about the title "lady" were bestowed only where it belongs?

Philosopher—I certainly do, madam. No word in the language is so misused.

"I am glad we agree so well. now if you would only giye a clear and comprehensive definition of the term I will do my share towards making it public."

"A lady, madam, is a human being of the feminine gender who is not afraid to be called a woman."

—One of the leading real estate agents in Sacramento has been trying to induce the other agents in that city to enter into an agreement to stop all newspaper advertisements after the month of August. We advise the Sacramento papers not to make the least objection. Let the Sacramento agents try it a year or two and see where they will land. After that they will pay their newspaper bills without grumbling.

—The Circus craze is broken out in Virginia City.

Grain Without Water.

Items like the following show how the possibilities of this State are being figured out. The Walker Lake Bulletin says:

"Last Wednesday the Bulletin mentioned a stool of matured barley which George Box found in Hawthorne district. During the week just passed Ed. DeGroff found both barley and wheat fully ripened on the burnt sagebrush flat some miles South of town. The heads were well filled, and when shelled out the grains were plump, and of the grade which would be rated in the market as first class. A short time ago Sam Kelson found near Marietta a stool of wheat just beginning to ripen, in which there were thirty-seven stalks. The grain found in widely distant localities has grown to maturity without irrigation. Dropped by some traveler it has luckily escaped the rabbits long enough to show that there are agricultural possibilities in this section, the mention of which some years ago would simply have excited ridicule. It would certainly not be advisable for anyone to begin on too large a sale, but the probabilities are so favorable that an experiment on a limited area, say 40 acres, will probably be made next year. It is understood that each acre of land tilled in this country helps the neighboring tilled land in retaining moisture, and in attracting rain and the ripening of the first field of grain grown without irrigation will result in the cultivation of miles of sagebrush flats, which are now only useful as homes for rabbits, gophers and coyotes."

Tahoe Notes.

A guest at Yank's sends the APPEAL the following notes, dated July 26th:

Stages are now coming in loaded daily. Never in the history of Tahoe has the travel been so large. At the many hotels it is standing room only, and at present the rush is from Santa Cruz and the Coast resorts. Mrs. Theresa Fair and daughter are guests at the Tallac House. Hon. A. A. Sargeant and Colonel Harden are among the distinguished arrivals this week. Mrs. Joe Smith and Mrs. McInnis, of San Francisco, are the guests of Mrs. R. M. Watson. The road between Tahoe and McKinney is now completed and is a most delightful drive. It follows the shore most of the way and the pretty cottages of Mr. Lubeck and Mrs. Hay are among the sights and the chute built by J. Thompson at the logging camp across the road near Idlewild. It is not an uncommon sight to see thirty and sometimes more of the guests at the Grand Central and McKinney's stationed at the end of the chute, watching the logs in their wild flight. The length is something over a mile and the length of time taken to run a log down is fifteen seconds. Miss Rose Stannus, the elocutionist, gave a pleasant reading at the Grand Central on Wednesday evening. Thursday evening the Virginia band gave a social dance for the guests of the hotel. Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock. The steamer "Mamie" after months of rest is now running. It is a lovely little boat, and for short runs is just the boat for Tahoe.

The Moore Murder Case.

At the trial of J. L. Moore, who is charged with the murder of his daughter at Reno, two married daughters testified that their father beat and stamped Alice to death. The defense is that the daughter committed suicide by taking a dose of strychnine, and that the story of the murder was a put up job by the mother and daughters to get the property.

Whichever of the statements may be correct, it proves utter depravity. The family resided in this country years ago, and Mrs. Moore trumped up a charge against a neighbor and endeavored to get the Grand Jury to indict him for poisoning sleep. An investigation showed that no sheep had been poisoned, and that there was no foundation whatever for the accusation.—Silver State.
